Entry of Ships to Yemen and Additional Charges

Due to recent developments and changes in the geopolitical landscape, we would like to bring to your attention that vessels entering Yemen may be subject to increased risks and challenges. These may include, but are not limited to, heightened security measures, potential delays, and other uncertainties that could impact the safe and timely transit of ships.

In light of these circumstances, it is imperative for all concerned parties, especially our esteemed members, to be informed about voyages involving Yemen as a destination or part of the transit route with following Consideration.

Risk Assessment: Conduct a comprehensive risk assessment before planning voyages to Yemen. This should include evaluating the current political, security, and logistical conditions to ensure the safety of the vessel, crew, and cargo.

Underwriting Consideration: Ship owners and operators are urged to notify the Club well in advance if their vessels are scheduled to call at Yemeni ports. This proactive approach will enable underwriters to assess the situation and make informed decisions regarding coverage.

Additional Charges: Please be advised that due to the heightened risks associated with voyages to Yemen, there may be additional charges incurred. These charges are necessary to cover the increased insurance risks and potential expenses resulting from unforeseen events.

We appreciate your attention to this matter, and we strongly encourage a proactive approach to risk management. The safety and security of your vessels, crew, and cargo are of paramount importance.
